

The need for the development of the main types of intelligence

Understanding of the fact that we live in an era of intellectual work, should convince us that not enough education that continues to prepare people for living in a technocratic era.

The education system that we offer today to their children, was formed even earlier. In the agricultural era, children learn half the day and went on vacation, during which they had to help their parents in the fields in summer, autumn, winter and spring.

With this education system we went through the times of the technocratic era, when the working day is increased to 17-18 hours. School ends on average at 13H., and children were forced to spend half of the day alone, but as the holidays. Well, if under the care of grandmothers, worse if older children. Because they (the older children) could not give them lessons of wisdom in the education, therefore, increased generation of just consumers.

With the same education system we live in now, in the age of intellectual work and information technology. Our children continue to be left to themselves in the afternoon and holidays. The presence of TV and availability of information on the Internet hardly plays a positive role in the upbringing of children.

The education system fails to impart many of the skills that are needed today, a man for living in society. She chases only the amount of knowledge and assessments. You need to know today are certainly many. But this is not all that is needed to build successful companies.

People are weak emotionally, not best resume companies able to control his spirit, to think creatively and with poor physical health are not ready to create a happy family, raise successful children, and as a result promote the formation of a prosperous society.

The need for the development of the main types of intelligence: emotional, physical, mental, spiritual obvious. These areas should be included in the training curriculum of the kindergarten and schools.

Development mental intelligence it is necessary for the formation of creative lateral thinking. If, again, in the technocratic era of the average person was enough to gain knowledge 1 time in my life, 40 years at one company and happily retire today if you had stayed in one company in one position for more than two years – you are an efficient employee for the organization, as you don't develop more than I did in this workplace, will not do.

Development emotional intelligence necessary because as more and more jobs require communication with people (sales representatives, network marketing, managers, etc.). And if to achieve success in a technocratic era, a man had to produce more detail, patiently working at the bench, today he needs to sell more of these items to achieve the same success. This requires communication skills, ability to negotiate, to understand the desires and needs of the people, in General, sales skills.

We need to devote time and attention physical intelligence, to maintain your health, as many people today lead a sedentary lifestyle, because of the professions that are in demand (and far to seek: the Internet entrepreneur, the rewriter and the accountant, and the same Manager, if not sitting in the office, then travels by car).

Spiritual intelligence we need not to stray. The world is developing so rapidly that over the next 10 years, he changed more than in the last 50 years. In addition, the amount of information that we receive during the year, the person beginning of the 20th century did not receive in their entire lives.

All people probably agree with the constant lack of time on certain things. Today, the phrase, "how time flies", is typical not only for adults but also for children. Ie they, too, have fall into the funnel the rapid development of the era of information technologies, which are adults. So there is not spun and not twisted, we need to develop your spirit and teach it to your children.

The development of the intellect &#8211; the path of human improvement, to change things for the better.